

THE UNITED STATES CONFERENCE OF MAYORS

CITY LIVABILITY PROGRAM: A FACT SHEET

PURPOSE OF THE PROGRAM To recognize and honor Mayoral leadership in developing city programs that contribute to the quality of life of the urban environment. Such programs can be in any policy area, from transportation to economic development to programs that assist the hungry and homeless.

COMPONENTS The three components of the program are 1) The National Clearinghouse on City Livability, which gathers information on programs that contribute to urban livability; 2) the City Livability Awards, which annually honor Mayors for leadership of programs to improve livability; and 3) technical assistance to Mayors and staff on livability issues.

SPONSOR OF THE PROGRAM The U.S. Conference of Mayors' City Livability Program is made possible by the support of Waste Management of North America, Inc., the world's largest environmental services company.

AWARDS PROCESS

Applications for the City Livability Awards Program are mailed to all cities of 30,000 or more, the membership of the Conference of Mayors, in mid-January of each year. Cities prepare applications describing one program that contributes to the livability of their urban environment. This year, applications were due in Washington on March 31, 1991. An independent panel of judges, selected by the Conference of Mayors, reviewed the applications in April, and Mayors receiving Awards were announced at the Annual Conference of Mayors meeting in San Diego on June 17.

PARTICIPATING CITIES

The largest number of cities ever participated in this year's program with a strong array of applications. The total was 117 cities submitting a total of 120 applications.

NUMBER OF AWARDS

Ten awards are given, five for cities above 100,000 in population and five for those below 100,000. In each population category there is one First-Place Awards and four Outstanding Achievement Awards for a total of ten awards.
